OBITUARY.

Horace F. Potter.

Deacon Horace F. Potter, a Mayflower descendant, and one of the oldest residents of Hebron, died at his home in that town on Saturday, December 17, 1881, before a long and illness or railroad had been built in the state. In later years he often said that he was first Hebron man to ride on the Air line railroad in his town.

He was a descendant in the eighth generation of John and Anna White Porter of Feelsed, England, who settled in Windsor in 1635, and on the maternal side he was descended from Elder Edward Fuller, who came in the Mayflower in 1620. He was a justice of the peace for many years and held numerous local offices. He represented Hebron in the general assembly of 1897. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary Caroline Bissell Fuller, whom he married on October 20, 1838. He also leaves seven children and nineteen grandchildren.

His surviving children are Mrs. Ida A. Douglas of Boston, Mass., Mrs. M. Clara Pratt of Bridgeport, Ct., Walter Porter of Columbia, H. Clinton Porter of Hebron, Mrs. Helen Gillette of Hebron, Mrs. Gertrude H. Hough of had lived there nearly all his life, and was very well known here among the old residents. Mr. Kennedy was a member of the Odd Fellows, and was in the grain and coal business at the time of his death. He is survived by Coroner Finds Death Was Accidental

Thomas H. Brackett, 35, of Worcester, Mass., Was Stealing a Ride on Central Vermont Freight—Sitting on Car, Back of Engine, West Side Bridge Fractured Skull—Identified by Companion and Norwich Man.

After conducting an investigation into the death of a man who was identified by his traveling companion by initials tattooed on his body, and by Frank A. Bliss of this city, who was formerly acquainted with him, as Thomas H. Brackett of Worcester, Mass., Coroner Franklin H. Brown found that the loss of life was accidental. Brackett was sitting on one of the cars of the Central Vermont freight train, northward bound, passing through Norwich at 7 o'clock on Friday morning. His back was toward the engine and he was sitting on the head of the car. The train was crashed into the West Side bridge. Death was probably instan-taneous from the fracture of the skull that he received.

Accompanied by Thomas Bennett, who said North Attleboro, Mass., was his home, and that he had first met Brackett in New London on Thursday, he "hopped" the freight from the latter city on Friday morning. There were 26 cars in the train, and between two cars they had no trouble in escaping the notice of "Conductor Vickery."

At Thetford, Mass., where he had a change of cars, he was seen by the station agent, and he was arrested. The situation of safety, and his lack of acquaintance with the road resulted in the collision between his head and the bridge. He was killed.

The impact, and Officer Frank Henderson sent word to Sergeant Mandrews, who telephoned to Yantic station to have the train stopped there.
This was done, and Brackett's dead body was found on the roof of one of the cars.

Medical Examiner Rush M. Kimball was notified by the station agent of the man's death, and his examination tended to show that death came instantaneously to the man who was riding the freight. Then Undertaker Charles A. Grier gave charge of the body and he conveyed it to his morgue on Franklin street.

Thomas Bennett, who was on the train with Brackett, gave a statement to the local examiner and later to the coroner, and the details that he could supply coincided with the initials T. H. B. tat-toed on his arm. Also stated that his arm was a picture of a soldier and a gun with the words "1904, 1908, and Philippines 1900-1902. The body was about 6 feet in height and weighed 175 pounds, and was dressed after the usual manner of traveling men of that class.

With Brackett was an umbrella mending kit, which indicated his business, but there was nothing on his person to confirm his identity. On Friday evening, however, Frank A. Bliss of Washington street, who formerly was a resident of Worcester, called at the morgue of Undertaker Grier and identified the man. The Worcester police were notified early in the day of the man's death and were advised to communicate with his relatives, but nothing had been heard by the coroner or undertaker last night and nothing by the police department at 3 o'clock this morning.

NORWICH VETERANS

MEET AGAIN THIS MONTH.

Eighteenth Regiment's Annual Reunion in Buckingham Memorial on Aug. 21-26th at Ocean Beach.

On Wednesday, Aug. 21, the eightteenth regiment, Connecticut Volunteers, will hold its 44th annual reunion at the Buckingham Memorial.
As this is also the 50th anniversary of the marching of the troops from the state, it is planned to make the occasion a memorable one, and efforts are being made to have a large attendance as possible. One of the 247 living members of the regiment, to whom cards were sent, 70 have signified their intention of attending. On account of age, illness or distance, 21 have stated that they would be unable to attend. From the others from whom no word has been received, it is expected that there will be enough to bring the roll well over 100. In past years the number at the reunions has been steadily decreasing, and this is an especially notable occasion, it is expected that there will be more veterans on hand than last year, when 102 gathered to talk over old times.

Many of the members are coming all over the country and distance will prevent a number who greatly desire to be present, from attending. One member of old age, however, who has sent word that he will be present is a former Norwich resident, George W.
Loomis, of Dallas, Texas. Mr. Loomis resided on the west side for some time, but shortly after the war removed to Texas, where he has since made his home.

The annual business session, which will probably last about an hour, will occupy the early part of the day. At noon dinner will be served the members and their wives by the ladies of Seaside Woman's Relief corps. The balance of the day will be devoted to a social time, the renewing of old friendships, and the relating of reminiscences. As the comrades of the regiment seldom get opportunities to see one another, it has been decided to omit any formal programme of exercises and thus leave the day free to social intercourse.

26th Regiment at Ocean Beach.

On Aug. 14, next Wednesday, the 26th regiment will hold its reunion at the pavilion at Ocean Beach and plans are under way to make the occasion a pleasant one for the comrades who are able to sojourn at the business session will be held in the forenoon and at noon a shore dinner will be served.
The day will be largely devoted to the talking over of old times, and the renewal of old friendships, and a general social time will be enjoyed. It is expected that about 70 veterans will attend. Joseph Peabody of Waterbury, president of the organization, will preside at the business session. Among those who are expected to be present is Vice-President William Eccleston of Cleveland.
